From the Bethel Town Office Planning Board Meets; Radio Study Committee Recommends Use of Town Frequency by Water District

The Bethel Planning Board met on Monday, July 30, at the Town Office, after making a site inspection on Bird Hill, on the land of Al Saunders and Keith Farnham. Mr. Saunders and Mr. Farnham are dividing their property into three lots, which has brought their development of the land under the provisions of the state subdivision law, and consequently under the Bethel subdivision regulations administered by the planning board. After viewing the site, and inspecting the final plat plan submitted by the owners, the board approved the subdivision and signed the plat plan.

In other business, the board was informed about the town's project to number the streets in Bethel. A request for electric power for P. H. Chadbourne was signed. And a mode of operation for revising the subdivision regulations was agreed on. The board will compare the wording in three drafts of subdivision regulations, modifying them when necessary to provide the regulations most appropriate to a town of Bethel's size and character. The board's next meeting will be held in two weeks, on Aug. 15, with the major agenda items the revision of subdivision regulations.

Two court cases were heard in Rumford District Court on Monday, July 30, and one case was continued on Page Four

PHOTOGRAPHERS FEATURED AT SOCIETY MEETING TONIGHT

Bethel's photographers through the years will be the featured topic at the monthly meeting of the Bethel Historical Society to be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House. Since its discovery in the middle of the last century, photography has been an important activity in the community.

Beginning with J. E. Small in the 1850's, through C. S. York, R. W. Glidden, Irving Kimball and Eugene Van Den Kerckhoven at the turn of the century to Donald Brown in the 1950's, many photographs of Bethel people and scenes have been made. This program will focus on the work of these and other shutterbugs.

Anyone having photographs taken by any of these photographers or others, who is willing to share them please bring to the meeting. The meeting is open to anyone interested and refreshments will follow the program.

Another hot humid week: We did have one lowery day; but, on the whole was not a very good week for working outdoors. The string beans are loaded. Frank helped me pick some Sunday for canning and kept exclaiming at how many beans to a bush. Other women on the road, who can, were in the process of canning beans this week. The cukes are coming on fast and will be more than we can eat before the week is out; so next comes pickling. I can never seem to get the ingredients to get ready at the same time from the garden.

Fight back!

5 1/4% is not enough!

New Federal regulations now let us pay you 1/4% more interest on regular savings. That only increases our regular savings rate to 5 1/4%. And in these inflationary times, that just isn't enough. You deserve more.

No problem if you have $10,000 or plenty of time.

With $10,000 you can buy a six-month money-market certificate and earn up to 9% or possibly more.

Other high-rate savings certificates require you to tie up your money for as long as eight years. And if you're like most people you can't "afford" to do that either.

Fight back with a letter and a loophole.

Let our elected officials in Washington know that the new interest rates do not go far enough.

Fight back with a "Loophole" certificate, too. If you have $3,000 or more in available savings, we'll lend you the difference you need to buy a $10,000 money-market certificate. That's how our "loophole" certificates work.

Join the fight for higher interest on your savings.

Visit any Casco office. Let us explain how many of our customers are using Loophole Certificates to earn 6, 7, 8% or more on investments of about 3,000, 4,000 or $5,000.

Letters to the Editor

To: David Salway and Nelson Smith.

As the father of one of your players and a member of the community, I want to thank you for the fine job you did coaching the Bethel Red Sox!

Your season was a success, regardless of the final standings, because the boys enjoyed playing baseball. I compliment you on your patience and understanding in dealing with the boys and thank you for giving up your free time to coach. Too often Little League coaches see winning as the only thing rather than one aspect of the program. I never heard you scream at players or speak to them in a derogatory way and you went out of your way to see that each boy played in each game. Your conduct toward umpires was exemplary and by your actions you showed your players true sportsmanship. I am proud that my son had the opportunity to know you and play for you.

Dave and Nelson—thanks,
Donald W. Fudge

They posted three wins and three losses with one cancelled game.

$30 MILLION OWED STATE BY ABSENT PARENTS

"About $30 million is owed the Maine Department of Human Services by absent parents whose families must rely on the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) Program, according to Michael R. Pettit, Commissioner.

"To collect this money, the department's Support, Enforcement and Location Unit (SELU) is taking a tough look at parents who are not providing support for their children," the Commissioner says. "When a family is deprived of its principal breadwinner, it usually has to rely on AFDC for the necessities. In such cases, the department collects the court ordered support payments and makes up the rest out of tax money."

Currently, the AFDC program costs about $32 million each year in direct payments to more than 19,000 broken and low income families.

The $30 million owed the state is from court and DHS established obligations of $14 million a year from absent parents, and $16 million in overdue back payments, according to Colburn Jackson, SELU director.

"Several years ago the unit had eight agents handling an average of 800 cases each," he says. Of course the collection rate was not very high and back payments accumulated."

The fiscal year ending June 30, 1979, showed SELU collections at a record $4.3 million. Jackson says this is more than $1 million above the previous year's collection and more than 400% about 1975 collections. He expects to collect more than $5 million during the current fiscal year that ends June 30, 1980.

"The money from this collection is returned to the AFDC program," Jackson says that although he expects collections to continue to rise, he does not expect to be able to collect the entire debt owed the state.

"We realize in some cases the court orders are beyond the means of the absent parent to pay because of a variety of reasons such as the time of divorce, sickness or a change in financial status," Jackson says. "Other times the court orders are too low and it is not cost effective for the state to attempt collection."

"We try to maintain a policy of fairness and understanding of the particular circumstances in each individual case with all our dealings with the absent parents," he says. "We try to be flexible when working out ways for parents to meet their child support obligation. But once an arrangement is made, we are strict in insuring that the obligation is kept."

Jackson urges non-paying responsible parents to contact the SELU unit in each regional Human Services office to make arrangements for meeting their child support obligations.

"We will get to them sooner or later," he says. "Voluntary arrangements will be far less painful for them."

SELU also establishes paternity for AFDC cases where the child was born out of wedlock. The father still has a legal obligation to support his child, Jackson says.

"We are using a newly developed genetic matching blood test to establish paternity," he says. "This method has proven more than 90% accurate and is also a protection for men who are falsely accused of paternity. With wider use of this testing, it will become increasingly difficult for actual fathers to avoid their parental responsibilities."

Maine's SELU program's efficiency is among the top six in the nation. For every dollar it costs the unit to operate, it returns more than $4 to the AFDC program. Tom Morousas, Program Specialist, Office of Child Support Enforcement, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Region I, Boston, says "Federal representatives are using Maine as a model to beef up the programs in other states whose programs are not as cost effective."

"One element of Maine's success in collections is its versatility and resourcefulness in using all available enforcement techniques," Morousas says, "such as mandatory payroll deductions, criminal prosecution with long term probation and the use of IRS record systems."

"The Child Support Enforcement Program has gained tremendous support throughout the nation," he says. "No longer will state or federal government be required to support someone else's family in addition to his own when that someone else has the means to support them, but refuses to do so."

Written comments on the subjects of these hearings will be accepted until 10 days after the hearing. They should be addressed to the Commissioner of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, 284 State St., Augusta, Maine 04333.

made, we are strict in insuring that the obligation is kept."

Jackson urges non-paying responsible parents to contact the SELU unit in each regional Human Services office to make arrangements for meeting their child support obligations.

SELU also establishes paternity for AFDC cases where the child was born out of wedlock. The father still has a legal obligation to support his child, Jackson says.

"We are using a newly developed genetic matching blood test to establish paternity," he says. "This method has proven more than 90% accurate and is also a protection for men who are falsely accused of paternity. With wider use of this testing, it will become increasingly difficult for actual fathers to avoid their parental responsibilities."

Maine's SELU program's efficiency is among the top six in the nation. For every dollar it costs the unit to operate, it returns more than $4 to the AFDC program. Tom Morousas, Program Specialist, Office of Child Support Enforcement, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Region I, Boston, says "Federal representatives are using Maine as a model to beef up the programs in other states whose programs are not as cost effective."

"One element of Maine's success in collections is its versatility and resourcefulness in using all available enforcement techniques," Morousas says, "such as mandatory payroll deductions, criminal prosecution with long term probation and the use of IRS record systems."

"The Child Support Enforcement Program has gained tremendous support throughout the nation," he says. "No longer will state or federal government be required to support someone else's family in addition to his own when that someone else has the means to support them, but refuses to do so."

Written comments on the subjects of these hearings will be accepted until 10 days after the hearing. They should be addressed to the Commissioner of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, 284 State St., Augusta, Maine 04333.

— Mrs. Arline Bernier, Corres. —

A couple of men with unfamiliar instruments told us on inquiry it was a gravity survey which checked soil content over a large area. They worked near the road in front of the Grange Hall.

Saturday morning for two hours or more the eastern and northern sky produced a real spectacular. A huge round rainbow with each of the colors showing surrounded the sun. The day was clear and the rest of the sky showed a few wispy white clouds. Inside this circle was darker clouds appearing a bit condensed. Perhaps this is what gave it a three-dimensional appearance. In the northern sky there was another portion of rainbow—about one-third of an arc. This did not touch the horizon, but at first each color was clear gradually fading to the more predominate.

I've been reprimanded for stating that the Lavalles brothers were building the John Douglass house or camp on Backstreet and was informed that John is building and the Lavalles helping part-time. Excuse please.

Lou Charrons had 20 guests during the past week.

Dorothy Brennon was married Saturday at the Bethel church. A reception was held after the service.

Edward Brennon lost his two small pigs Sunday night. These little porkers traveled so fast they were easily lost sight of in tall grass, or brush. One was recovered Monday morning but last seen of the other, he was walking in the field.

The bead class had a small attendance but the group was industrious and harmonious.

The Upcounty Restaurant has been closed temporarily because of water problems.

Dr. Barnes burned his blueberry fields last summer and many pickers are disappointed and return home with empty dishes.

West Paris Senior Citizens will meet Aug. 7 at the Legion Hall for a pot luck dinner. Verna Cole offered to bring the birthday cake. Plans for Old Home Days will be discussed. Everyone in the group is asked to cook for the food sale, Friday night at Old Home Days, Aug. 17.

SWAN - HUTCHINS

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Swan

The Locke Mills Union Church was the setting June 30 for the marriage of Debra Marie Hutchins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melburn Hutchins, Hanover, and Bruce Charles Swan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Swan Jr. of Locke Mills.

Rev. David Wagon officiated at the double ring ceremony and Rev. David Larson said a prayer for the couple.

Mrs. Beverly Melville furnished traditional wedding music at the organ, and Billy Shimamura played the guitar, both accompanying soloist Miss Kathy Littlefield.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a white gown, fashioned with an English net yoke and Queen Ann neckline, empire bodice, and long straight chiffon sleeves, all defined by Venice lace. Her hemline extended to a Matheu chapel train. A veil of silk illusion fell from a matching cap of Venice lace and pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Jackie Young, Norway, was her matron of honor.

Sistersmaids were: Gail Worcester, sister of the bride, Laurie Veillette, cousin of the bride, and Linda Stearns, friend of the bride.

The matron of honor was gowning in a mint green polyester knit with a cowl neck, short sleeves, and blouson effect at bodice.

The bridesmaids wore identical styled gowns in lilac. They all wore colored baby's breath in their hair and carried half baskets.

Children's Center

The Center staff would like to thank Ernie Robbins and his grandson for their time and the use of the ponies on Mollycoddet Day. Sorry for the mix up with names!

At the Center this week children have been Finger Painting, playing table games, reading a story about Pickles the Fire Cat in preparation for a trip to Rumford Fire Department and have been keeping cool with a swim and squirrels from a hose.

Thanks to the Rotary Club the children now have a portable swimming pool and three new tricycles which will be thoroughly enjoyed.

SWIMMING PROGRAM

CONCLUDED FRIDAY, JULY 27

This years Red Cross swimming lessons sponsored by the Bethel Recreation Dept., concluded Friday, July 27. The participants enjoyed three weeks of excellent swimming weather as there was only one rainy day. Over one hundred and fifty local youngsters took part in lessons that ranged from getting your face wet to specialized life saving techniques. Friday, a special day of water games and races was enjoyed by students ranging from kindergarten age to middle school. As program director, I would like to thank the following for their special contributions each of which played an important part in making the program a success: to Ivy Philbrook for the use of her beach and waterfront facilities; to the Albert Buck family for preparing the diving float; to Arlene Greenleaf for special instruction in First Aid techniques; to the families that donated the use of their small craft and lifejackets; to parents and friends who provided transportation for the youngsters and finally a special thank you to Sonora Greenleaf and Ricky James both of whom provided excellent individualized instruction for the children.

What a glorious week. We had several thunder showers and much needed rain, and the weather is still HOT.

Monday noon I went over to Dr.

Nangle's office and it was like Old

Home Day. Mrs. Anne Jordan,

Bryant Pond, came into the waiting room, also Irene (Cole) Buck that I hadn't seen since 1923, when she and her dad the late Lin

Cole, used to come over from the back of Billings Hill to see Mr.

Cole's mother, Mrs. Edna Judkins.

Norman Bisbee, Shagg Pond, who worked at Penley's when I did.

Time and tide wait for no man.

Thursday, I called on Edgar and Lectie Davis, "Pinhook" and took a hot chicken casserole for their lunch. Also called on Mrs. James

Knights, Agnes Coffin, the Richard

Felts, also Sharon and Jenny

Scherf.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kalinowski went to their Portland, Conn., home July 24 for one week to oversee the installation of new water pipes. Root and Doris Lawrence fed and watered the dog and cats and filled the outdoor bath tub for the cows to drink.

They also looked after the cukes and beans along with Herman and Thelma Card of Norway. The cukes make good eating. A whole meal in one.

I went to Sampson's one day

this past week and noticed Donald (Pat) Briggs scanning the pamper department. Although I have known him since June 1922, I didn't dare ask him if he was planning a second family, but read in the Citizen that he and wife, Edna, had a new great granddaughter. Congratulations.

Not many news or it was too hot to round them up.

DEPT. OF HUMAN SERVICES SEEKS GRANT TO STUDY "HEALTH RISK REDUCTIONS"

Why not smoke? Why worry about being fat, or just plump? Why worry about having a few drinks?

If these questions describe an attitude Maine residents have about their health, the Maine Department of Human Services wants to do something about it.

For openers, the Department has applied for a $122,000 "risk reduction program" grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare available from the Center of Disease Control in Atlanta.

If granted, the funds would be used to expand the state agency's ability to meet its responsibilities of protecting, preserving and promoting the public's health.

Commissioner Michael R. Pettit has estimated the total cost of health care for Maine people will soon surpass $1 billion a year, and by 1985 could reach $2 billion unless present trends are reversed.

Commissioner Pettit, who has made health protection a major goal of his administration, expects the program to "promote more healthful lifestyles by facilitating voluntary adoption of or change in selected personal choice behaviors resulting in a lowered risk of chronic disease, disability and death."

In other words, the Department of Human Services wants Maine residents to change their attitudes about unhealthy habits. Even more important, the Department of Human Services wants the citizens to know why they should, and how they can do it.

The Department of Human Services' grant application lists some of the reasons why Maine residents should change their unhealthy life styles:

1. There are about 150,000 citizens using mental health services.

2. Disease of the respiratory system accounts for 27.4% of all illnesses covered by Workman's Compensation in Maine, and the national average is 5.7%.

3. A random survey of Maine households showed that 31% had a member of the family in bed at home for illness or injury in the past three months. The major causes for illness were influenza, respiratory problems and accidents.

4. The leading cause of death for people between 10 and 34 was an accident, especially in a motor vehicle. A Department of Public Safety report for one month, September 1978, showed 83% of the motor vehicle deaths that month occurred as a result of drivers operating under the influence with blood alcohol levels high enough to warrant conviction.

"It's obvious from just a few statistics such as these that changes in lifestyles could have reduced illness and death for many Maine residents," Commissioner Pettit said.

Excessive drinking, smoking and drug abuse are all habits that have to be changed before we can see any change in the trends these figures show us," he said.

The commissioner also pointed out that a lack of exercise, improper diets heavy with "junk food" and failure to use safety devices in cars are habits that can be changed to improve personal health.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Perkins visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Trenholm, in Kingfield, Sunday.
